Producer

Viña Dagaz (Dagaz is a Celtic rune that means ‘the beginning of a new path’) was founded in 2015 by renowned winemaker Marco Puyo. After many years exploring the different areas of Colchagua whilst working on behalf of other wineries Marco felt that the temperate Mediterranean climate and granitic soils of Pumanque offered a unique opportunity to create something more personal. Drawing inspiration from the granitic soils of Côtes du Rhône, Galicia and Rioja, he wanted to create something that authentically represented the terroir. The first vintage in 2016 produced Tierras de Pumanque; a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Petit Verdot, Carménère and Syrah. Today Dagaz continue to produce high quality wines showing elegant mineral characteristics and good acidity with great structure.

Winemaker

Marco Puyo was born in Santiago de Chile in 1966, where he lived until finishing his studies. He graduated as an Agronomist with a specialty in Oenology from the Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile in 1991 and received the Oenologist Diploma in 1992. Internationally, he harvested grapes in Bordeaux, Champagne and Burgundy in France, Napa in the United States, and the Uco Valley in Argentina. Later he worked for Domaines Barons de Rothschild (Lafite) as Chief Winemaker for their project in Chile, Viña Los Vascos in the Colchagua Valley, before he took over as Oenology Director at Viña San Pedro Tarapacá, one of the most important wine groups in Chile. In 2018 he left this position to dedicate himself completely to DAGAZ Wines. Today he is dedicated to making his own wines which reflect his passion for making fresh, vibrant and energetic wines of origin.
